Following 1743 Welcome Days, the University Student Centers’ Fall Activities Night gave 3,665 students the opportunity to meet other students from 293 registered student organizations of many types:

Students can connect year-round with all RSOs and chartered Greek organizations at studentcentral.udel.edu, the USC’s interactive involvement portal which advertises thousands of events each year.

At least 2,773 students attended one or more Perkins Live or Trabant Now late-night program. As a result of attending:

- feel a sense of belonging in the UD community: 85%
- identified other campus activities at which alcohol is not served: 81%
- identified other campus activities to become involved in while at UD: 68%
- had conversations with people from different cultural backgrounds: 61%
- of mentors feel a sense of belonging in the UD community: 60%

Among undergraduate students who acknowledged past alcohol consumption, 75% reported having zero drinks prior to attending Perkins Live (Fridays) and Trabant Now (Saturdays), and 70% reported having zero drinks afterward.

The Center for Black Culture’s Each One Reach One mentor program has provided 95 first-year Black students with an upper-class peer mentor to guide them in their first year of life at UD. As a result of participating in EORO 2015-16:

- of mentors believe they have a responsibility to give back to the community: 100%
- of mentees feel that EORO helped them adjust socially to the University of Delaware: 92%
- of mentors know how to develop trustworthy relationships with others: 91%
- of mentees feel a sense of belonging in the UD community: 89%
- of mentors feel a sense of belonging in the UD community: 88%

The UD Career Advising Network, an advising platform launched through Career Services Center in fall 2016, has gained accounts from 868 students and 1,484 alumni and parent advisors. Employer-student engagement has also grown:

- Job and internship postings in online recruiting system
- Employers recruiting on-campus and through recruiting system
- Employers recruiting on-campus

For more details on these efforts, visit sites.udel.edu/studentlife/work